All the money collected by these gentlemen will be judiciously and economically expended in Richmond for such purposes as holding public demonstrations, bringing simile of the signature of George C. Coughout voters at registration and election, printing the tickets, and other necessary and unavoidable expenses. The impression that a great deal of money is wasted at that Mr. George C. THE WIZARD ARRESTED FOR CONDUCTING TION OF THE MATTER.

Wyman the wizard was arrested yesterday on a warrant sworn out by Mr. R. B. Chaffin, of the firm of Chaffin, Staples & Co., real estate agents of this city, charging him (first) with "unlawfully obtaining by false pretences the sum of one dollar for four tickets to a gift exhibition," and (second) "that he did unlawfully set up and was concerned in arranging a lottery for money, land, and other things of value; and did knowingly permit the sale at Virginia Hall, in the city of Richmond, of tickets in said lottery, or writings purporting to guarantee prizes to be drawn in said lottery." Mr. Wyman was carried to the First station-house, where Justice Granger admitted him to bail in the sum of $100 on each warrant. Mr. W. Scott Carrington became surety for his appearance at the Police Court this morning.

Mr. Chaffin holds three of Wyman's deeds to lots of land in New Jersey. These he purchased yesterday for $1.50 from a gentleman in the drug business here. Wyman, in his handbills, speaks of making "Centennial donations of deeds for building lots 20 by 100 feet, adjoining the beautiful town of Hammonton, N. J., &c. &c. Marshall Ward: Joseph J. English and All trains each way stop at this point, it being midway, and, as above stated, the most important place on the road; population near 4,000, and building lots are increasing in value, and will soon sell from $50 to $100 each; and all that is necessary is to have feet, which can be done at the hall of exhibition daily from 9 A. M. to 5 P. M."

Mr. Chaffin states that upon buying the deeds he obtained the services of Mr. E. M. Garnett, commissioner of lands for New Jersey in Virginia, and that with Mr. Garman. He found Wyman and his agent, Mr. Samuel Coughlin, and showed his deeds and demanded that the acknowledgment should be made and the title perfected before Mr. Garnett. The deeds bore a fac lin, who conveyed the land, attested by the same sort of signature of W. Rowe, witness. Mr. Wyman informed Mr. Chaffin Jersey, and that upon the payment of two

Further, he alleges that in New Jersey it is the custom for the purchaser to pay for the deed. Mr. George C. Coughlin resides at Morristown, N. J., sixteen miles from the New Jersey line, and he acknowledges all these deeds in New Jersey. Mr. Samuel Coughlin, with Wyman, is a brother of Mr. George C. Coughlin, who conveys title to the lots. Mr. Wyman, at the station-house, gave his business as juggler and his age at seventy years.

Miss Moore (Lady Allcash) was very hoarse. She has been suffering under a heavy cold ever since she has been in Richmond, and when she fully recovers will doubtless improve upon acquaintance. The chorus at the end of the first act was very well sung, and stirred up the audience into giving a handsome evidence of their appreciation. In the second act Zerlina's cavatina and concerted piece was well received, and there was quite a flutter among the audience as Concerning Medical Charities in the City of Richmond.

How poorly they met $30,000; the Century yase at $20,000; a Richmond's necessities, and the need of a sideboard, bought by a gentleman in San more liberal system, was fully demonstrated. more liberal system, was fully demonstrated, and the establishment of a dispensary was suggested as a remedy for this state of fairs, so pregnant with evil. It is proposed now to enter more into detail as to the matter, and to place before the people some of the many reasons why the Council should undertake the work:

I. Although it is quite true that in the North we find these institutions generally in the hands of wealthy individuals and societies, it cannot be done here; and to prove this it is only necessary to appeal to the experience of those who are now, or have been recently, engaged in begging money for charitable objects. The time was when we could boast as much wealth as any other people: but that was in the past. We know not what is in store for us in the future. Our present condition makes it obvious to all that at this time the question as to whether this charity is, or is not, to be established, turns simply and only on the response of the Council to a petition that is before them. Competent medical service is offered gratis; the only money required is what will be necessary to meet what are called running expenses and a small expenditure incidental to fitting up. The petition referred to, however, has a feature engrafted in it where it is provided that a company shall be formed, composed of life and annual members, to give moneyed assistance to the the fact that they were busily engaged sow-Council so soon as people can be found who will and can pay the stipulated dues. It may be argued think that the speaker would be bewildered that these reasons are not good ones, and by the vision of so many eager and upthat the superstition of the one and the turned eyes, accompanied by the sound of prejudice of the other is not founded on fact, and is therefore absurd and foolish. Nevertheless, as such is the case, and we are impotent to correct it, it becomes the part of wisdom to consider this condition of affairs and make allowance for it. 4th. Those who go there are liable (and justly so) to be exhibited to medical classes, their diseases and infirmities serving as illustrations to the lectures. This, however, is not compulsory, and is indeed nothing more than a proper return on the part of the patient for the benefit he receives: the intrinsic value of which benefit may be perhaps III. The only other refuge for the sick poor that they can claim is pauperism;

otherwise they are thrown upon the cold

charities of individuals, to whom they can only appeal on the score of humanity. Becoming an inmate of the almshouse, a stamp of shame is placed upon the poor man's name, which, whether rightly or no, stigmatizes him with his associates. No one knows save the man thus branded how hard it is to outlive this curse. And this is not the worst of it. Many unfortunates, either through despair or through association the abandoned, become themwith selves worthless, and crime, if the dockets of the courts are searched, will be found to have thus originated. cannot better close this article than by quoting a portion of an appeal of the managers of a dispensary that is doing much good in a sister city. It says "Workingmen and their families when in health and under the blessings of regular employment support themselves in comparative luxury; probably more comfortably and independently as a whole than any similar population in the world. Neither vice nor extravagance detracts from the happiness of their lot. But if hard times or sickness comes-especially the latter-and disturb the regularity of his scanty income, want and suffering ensues. More old persons and more children are to be than in any other. The number of dependmission found and sought to alleviate. Besides this, thrift is not in all households of freely, has not permitted any accumulation for evil days; and further, vice may have squandered or laziness neglected to earn any store for illness, while the one may have occasioned or the other have caused the want of work, which prevented the earning of any such store. The destitute, from whatever cause, are and must be the objects of charity." Does not this sad picture, drawn from real life, appeal to all?

from Philadelphia, and I am very anxious hat every one, even children of ten or twelve years of age, should enjoy this won-derful show. Just after the war I asked a lady in Baltimore please to give me a list of her new songs, but she replied she did not wish anybody but herself to "sing her songs." Had she answered me with a horrid oath I would have not been more thunderstruck. for the parlor not as high as a chair, for Francisco whom I know by character, for $4,400; a mantlepiece, by the same, for $1,800; a little silver boat eighteen inches long on a silver waiter, bought by Mrs. General Grant, for $2,000; a divan for $30,000; and then remember that $100,000,000 but express the value of the other articles to be seen, and you may form some faint conception of the magnitude of this wonderful exhibition. I have not attempted to describe these costly articles, as I think their exceeding costliness will impress you more forcibly than any imperfect descrip-tion I might give. The statuary is very fine. The dead Christ, in wax, affected me to tears. I have seen all the finest pictures in Italy, but was never so moved before. Don't fail to see this-it is in the main building. The Rally at Matoaca .- The mass-meeting at Word's church yesterday was a great success in every respect. The farmers of the vicinity, and in fact of the whole of Matoaca township, turned out in force despite ing wheat and in other seasonable pursuits. Your reporter heard several of them say that they had gotten up before day to put in "there is no physician or druggist in this a day's work in time to get to the meeting. his own voice, every word resounding amid the respectful silence that reigned throughout the grove. The meeting was one of the most impressive we have ever attended. After Governor Walker had finished, the Matoaca battery, under the command of Colonel James T. Robinette, opened fire, and such a lively salute was never before given in Matoaca in times of peace. The Colonel showed great proficiency in the art of handling the handsome field-piece, which did so much towards making things lively. Mayor Chiles, of Manchester, was nex ntroduced, and made a capital speech which he seemed especially to adapt to his audience. He was well received, and retired amid great applause. After his remarks were concluded lunch was announced, and a bountiful repast was served by Colonel Henry Jordan, of Man chester, under the superintendence of E. Gallegher, Esq., of the same city. It was greatly enjoyed by all present, and the meeting reassembled under the very brightest of auspices. A. C. Atkinson, Esq., Commonwealth's attorney for Manchester, a young and rising lawyer, who is now canvassing this district, was then introduced and made a speech which pleased everybody. It was welltimed, and interspersed with appropriate anecdotes, which put the whole crowd in a good humor. Captain Charles N. Roumaine made at eloquent address, and after a few remarks from Mr. James P. Cowardin the meeting adjourned. Personal.-Mike Lannon, an old Man-
